President's Message

– Ben Schmidtke, President

Well, Fall is upon us. It was a busy summer. The farm picnics were great successes. A big Thank You to Roger and Cindy Weideman for hosting one of the picnics, and to the Gruenerts and Larsons for hosting both the Advanced Cow Training for the Youth and the farm picnic. Thank you also to all of the folks that supported Wisconsin Farm Technology Days and the Wisconsin and Minnesota state fairs. The Highlands are always a big hit with the people who attend these events. World Beef Expo is now behind us, and the NCHCA was well represented at that show. As I write this, we're gearing up for the annual NCHCA show in Austin, MN. As the year winds down, I hope that Fall finds you, your families, and your cattle enjoying this beautiful time.

*Happy Fall,
Ben*

Member Tip: The Importance of Breeding Season

Submitted by: Dan Webster, Lynx River CC

Breeding season is a time of year when the size and quality of next year's calf crop is determined. So thoughts of nutrition and body score are important to the herd's reproductive efficiency. There is a lot of talk about grass fed beef. The quality and quantity of grass and hay should be looked at carefully. It should be tested for TDN (total digestive nutrients). Vitamins and minerals are also an essential part of the feeding program. The breeding season is an important time for producers and could impact whether your cattle are making a profit or on the losing end. Whether you want cattle to calve in the spring or fall, thought should be given to the kinds of management that could improve efficiency in beef herds. Herd health and nutrition programs directly influence calving outcomes. Adequate nutrition is vital as cows in poor condition are not likely to conceive. In a 10 cow herd if 2 cows do not put a calf on the ground it could mean the difference between a profit or a loss. So the extra thought to the feeding program could mean a difference between a profit or a loss.

Another factor that could have a dramatic effect on calving rates and beef returns is the fertility of the herd bull. A simple breeding soundness evaluation is an inexpensive way to realize a bull's potential. Even a marginal improvement in calving percentage can have an important impact on the bottom line. Another important consideration is bull quality. Buying an inexpensive bull often can be the last way you want to try to save money. Saving money on a questionable bull can easily be the difference between a profit and a loss. Just because it made it around the show ring twice doesn't mean it will produce the best in the field.

The University Extension Services have a variety of resources available to help with any aspect of beef herd management.

WHERE DOES MY FOOD COME FROM?

MAYBE FROM WINDLAND FLATS

If we have not asked ourselves that question before, I'm sure we have thought about it many times. Let's be accurate, the availability of food sources in our area is easy to get to for most area residents. Most times it's about convenience though; you can pick up groceries at most gas stations or even in the large home improvement stores - yup, it just seems odd to be able to order a sheet of plywood, some drywall screws, a new vanity mirror, and a gallon of milk at the same store, but... you can these days. It's easy to get food, understood. We just need to be aware of what we are putting in our mouths and, in my case, I want to know where it comes from; especially when we consider how it can effect our health. I hope you do, but if you still wonder, let me help bridge the gap between that question and one local food source that could provide education on future food purchases that your home most likely is already making.

Have you ever had that feeling you were at the right place at the right time? Well that's what happened to me when I visited Windland Flats located between Zimmerman & Princeton. It was a real eye-opener because I really didn't know they were right in our area and offer such healthy alternative products. They are a Highland grass fed beef, free-range chicken and pasture-raised pork farm. I was able to visit the local farm owned by Josh and Maria Krenz as part of a "Eat Local Farm Tour" that was sponsored by area food co-op's. The co-ops believe that supporting our local growers is vital to providing healthy food - produced locally.

WINDLAND FLATS TOUR BY FARMER JOSH

Guests took a tour of Windland Flats farm near Princeton.

STAYING LEAN

The lean meat is lower in fat, lower in cholesterol, and higher in protein.

Our diets need a variety of healthy food items to maintain a healthy lifestyle. Windland Flats can offer your regular diet a chicken, beef, and pork product from animals on their farm, and partner farms, that are all grain and grass fed, and are naturally raised without antibiotics or hormones. True healthy choices keep their products. When I took the tour with Farmer Josh I could see that it was important to provide a high standard of living for their animals. Their farm is beautiful with a focus on maintaining the animals well being. Windland Flats chose to raise 100% Scottish Highland Cattle, or better known as "Highlands" because they produce beef cuts that are lab tested to be most tender. The lean meat is 93% lean and 7% fat and lower in fat, lower in cholesterol, and higher in protein versus other Angus grass fed beef. There Highlands can produce this kind of cuts because they do not have to store as much body fat to keep themselves warm, instead they grow more long hair to keep their bodies warm and stay lean. The farm has 17 cattle on 100 acres with new calves expected in September. After the cattle have matured they are processed at a USDA facility. Windland Flats also partners with other local farms in the area, like Cedar Bee Farms, to sell honey, pasture raised pork, and free range chickens.

If you are a gardener and harvest your food yourself then you already realize you are part of a movement to support local food growth and consumption and it is important in many ways.

It is important for our local food supply, important to our local economy, and it is important to our own health. Supporting our local farmers and getting to know them automatically gives you the added benefit of actually knowing how your food is produced and where your food is coming from.

You may want to try some of the products and can do so by visiting their web site, or seeing the selections at the City Center Market in Cambridge or Grass Roots Co-op in Anoka, and eventually at Elk River Co-op Association as well. Just know that eating healthy can be as simple as shopping at a local farm.

SCOTTISH HIGHLAND

Sunset at Windland Flats. Distinctive for their big horns and long wavy coats, Highlands come in seven different colors black, brindle, red, yellow, white, silver and dun.

Advanced Cow Training Cow Camp

by Paige Proctor

The North Central Highland Cattle Association hosted its first annual Advanced Cow Training Cow Camp (or A.C.T. for short) this past August at Four T Acres in Burlington, Wisconsin. We had a total of six juniors from Wisconsin and Michigan attended, and had a great time learning and working with our animals.

Calley came over and demonstrated different halter breaking techniques to prepare animals for shows. We discussed ways to work with difficult animals and learned many new techniques. Afterwards, everyone had the opportunity to weigh the animal they were working with, and later had the chance to use weight tapes to estimate weights as well. Dave Larson talked about handling animals, and discussed how he set up his handling facility. We got to take a hay ride farm tour and see the cattle at Four T Acres. On Saturday afternoon, we headed over to Lake Geneva Country Meats to tour their meat processing plant. We got to walk through their facility and learn about how they process livestock after they're butchered. We also learned about how they smoke many of their well-known and award winning products such as brats and sausages. Afterwards, we headed back to the farm to roast hotdogs and marshmallows over the campfire. While we were at cow camp, we also tie dyed pillowcases, learned about fitting and clipping, and had a showmanship clinic. Each junior also led an animal through an obstacle course, which was a great bonding activity for us and our animals. Cow camp ended on Sunday with Four T Acres farm picnic. Thank you to Four T Acres for hosting and everyone who helped make camp possible!

The 2017 A.C.T. Cow Camp is in the works and will be held at Windemere Farm, dates to be announced. We hope you can join us!

The North Central Highland Cattle Association (NCHCA) was formed in 1982 to promote Scottish Highland Cattle, form a marketing unit for breeders, and to provide a local organization closer to home. The organization has done this and provides opportunities for youth and families to have fun with their Highland cattle. Our association provides networking and educational opportunities for its members, has an active junior program for youth, and provides a local voice to the national organization, the American Highland Cattle Association.
